Question: 1

The entire world is facing a novel health crisis which has grown into different variants unlike any in the 100-year history, one that is killing people, spreading human suffering, and upending people's lives. But this is much more than a health crisis. It is a human, economic and social crisis! The coronavirus disease (COVID-19), which has been characterized as a pandemic by the World Health Organization (WHO), is attacking societies at their core.

COVID-19 has touched every aspect of human lives and unfolded an unprecedented healthcare cum economic crisis across the globe. Economies all over the world, including the most robust and steadfast economies of the world such as Italy, China, Germany, Japan, and the United States have experienced socio-politico-economic meltdown after the COVID-19 outbreak. These economies have introduced lockdown restrictions which have resulted in economic challenges for their citizens and consequently their work-life balance has been significantly impacted. Particularly, social distancing and lockdown restrictions have curbed leisure, travel and social life across the world. Its effects on the global economy may last for many years and, perhaps, will also strategically reshape the future outlook

Vaccines are a critical new tool in the battle against COVID-19 and it is hugely encouraging to see so many vaccines proving successful and going into development. Working as quickly as they can, scientists from across the world are collaborating and innovating to bring us tests, treatments and vaccines that will collectively save lives and end this pandemic. Despite availability of these vaccines, experts are still uncertain about the future of COVID-19; however, they believe that this uncertainty will either bring in further cessation of economic activity or bring in bigger and better opportunities. Considering this, it has been recommended that each economy should evaluate its own threats and opportunities of this pandemic with a special emphasis on the future outlook, global strategies and its impact on policy making when economic recovery is around the corner.

Question: 2

Cool Dairy Products (CDP) is a Lahore based company with branches in Faisalabad, Gujranwala and Multan. Last year, a 100 KVA generator was shifted to Multan from Lahore, when it had already completed 35,000 hours of operation. Recently the generator has malfunctioned and stopped working.

After thorough inspection, the maintenance vendor has informed that malfunction was caused due to overheating of the engine and it needs to be completely overhauled.

As Manager Administration at CDP's Multan branch, write a letter to Saleem Yousuf, General Manager, CDP, 302 Jail Road, Lahore, seeking his approval for the repair of the generator and renting a generator as replacement, during the period in which repair is being carried out. Also suggest purchase of a new generator instead of repairing the existing one.

Assume that your name is Talat Mehmood and your office is situated at 101, Khanewal Road, Multan. You may make necessary assumptions to provide information/data which may be relevant in the given situation, to support your suggestion to purchase new generator.
